1. NAVAL.

[redacted] a Naval vessel was seen anchored at N 57°30' - 0 29°00'.

Description: [redacted] decided sheer of the deck, well rounded at the water-line in the stern where a davit stood on the port side. The vessels artillery was under tarpaulin. A gun on the foredeck had a comparatively long barrel, 2 tween-mounted guns on the quarter deck of much smaller caliber. An object was mounted on a ledge ahead of the bridge. It was covered by a tarpauline and of a size similar to a searchlight. A topmast with a longitudinal yard was placed on the bridge. On the after end of the yard was a small ball. Radar equipment on top of the mast as shown in sketches 1 and 1 B. Astern of the bridge a low funnel with a small tap. The funnel was lower than the bridge.

25X1

[redacted] two submarines passed at N 57°26' 0 23°08'. There was fog and the submarines were only visible for a moment. They had great speed and came from the direction of Riga.

Description: Both apparently alike [redacted]

[redacted] They looked freshly painted in a light blue/grey colour. A horizontal and vertical white-edged black stripe was painted on the conning tower. The foredeck was about twice the length of the conning tower and the quarterdeck was 3½ times the length of the conning tower. Ahead and astern of the conning tower was a ledge without guns or other visible equipment. On the foredeck was a small vertical case or cylinder. In the middle of the quaterdeck was a horisontal case or cylinder, the height of which was about 0,75m. and the length about 2,5m. About 3m. further aft was a similar object. The length was the same but the height was about 1,5m. On the top was a hoop or half ball corresponding to a quater of the cylinders length.

None of the submarines had visible radar or other electronic equipment. Neither a snort or a periscope could be seen.

Both submarines made an unusual amount of noise which could be heard long before and after they were seen.

2. NAVIGATION.

Only buoy nr. 1 and 2 were in possition in the Riga Bay.
